2002 and 2006 Winter Olympic Women's Hockey Gold Medalist

Cassie Campbell is one of Canada's most popular female athletes. She has had a stellar rise to the top ranks of women's hockey.

Now, Cassie is also a sought after corporate and keynote speaker, drawing on her accomplishments as the captain of both gold-medal winning Canadian Women's Olympic Hockey Teams (2002 and 2006) to explore the topics of leadership, teamwork, determination and coming out of your comfort zone.

This combination of topics will assist with bringing a new and enhanced winning attitude to your executive team and your work force!

The result is a keynote speech that inspires, informs, and entertains. Cassie talks about groundbreaking into the television business covering the NHL on CBC's Hockey Night in Canada, as well as her experiences from her career as both an Olympic athlete and now as someone who is on TV each Saturday night.

Cassie holds an Honors Sociology Degree from the University of Guelph and in 2000 and 2001 did color commentating for TSN and Headline Sports. Her focus on determination and teamwork shines as she speaks of her gold medal performances and those of her team who "didn't stop believing in one another".

Cassie is a down to earth, passionate speaker who will motivate and leave a lasting impression on your staff.
