

John Laskowski

"Laz" is well known for his career as play-by-play announcer for Indiana University basketball broadcasts.

In 1999 he was inducted into the Indiana Basketball Hall of Fame. His achievements as an IU basketball player included helping lead the Hoosiers to three Big Ten championships, Final Four status in the 1973 NCAA Championship, and a No. 1 national ranking in 1975 with a 31-1 record. And, for two years, Laz played with the NBA's Chicago Bulls.

In 2003, John published his first book, John Laskowski's Tales from the Hoosier Locker Room: A Collection of the Greatest Stories Ever Told.

A popular speaker for corporations, conventions, trade associations and youth groups, Laz can motivate, entertain and inspire any audience and address a wide variety of topics including teamwork, developing a winning attitude, dealing with change, overcoming adversity, leadership and playing up to your own potential.
