

Vince Lombardi, Jr.

Vince Lombardi's enthusiasm for growth, change, and improved performance, blended with his strong personality and first-hand knowledge of his legendary father's leadership techniques, makes for a dynamic speaking presentation!

With honesty, integrity, and authenticity - virtues Lombardi places above all others - he earned a law degree and maintained a private law practice while serving in the Minnesota legislature.

He moved from law and politics to professional football in 1975 when he joined the Seattle Seahawks as an assistant to the General Manager. He went on to become Assistant Executive Director of the National Football League Management Council as a labor negotiator and later led two United States Football League teams as President and General Manager.

Lombardi is the author of Coaching for Teamwork and What It Takes to Be #1.

It is an inspiration and an emotional lift to attend one of Lombardi's presentations as he weaves together his childhood experiences with his famous father and his adult experiences with law, politics, and professional football.
